

Climate Change

Endangered Species

Sending Messages

Did you hear about our Climate?

Age
5+

ENGLISH
TEXT AVAILABLE

Worrying letters from the amazon

The animals in the Amazon Rainforest are worried: The rivers aren't flowing anymore because of all the dams, there are almost no fish, it is a lot hotter than usual, and it rains when it shouldn't be raining.

There is lots of plastic waste everywhere and a highway full of cars where the forest used to be. All of sudden, a fire breaks out and the animals have to flee.

To top it off, with illegal gold mining, prospectors using mercury are polluting the water severely.

The Pink dolphin, Jaguar, Blue Macaw, Caiman, Tamanduá, Golden Lion Tamarin and their friends are writing messages to each other, worrying about the state of the forest and searching for their friends, the Golden Toad, the Long-Tailed Hopping Mouse and the Spix's Macaw. The only problem is that all these species are in extinction or at least extinct in the wild.

This beautiful picture book ignites young readers' curiosity about the animals from the Amazon and what we can do to save them.

Written by Bijal Vachharajani
Illustrated by Diogo Martinez

21x25 cm • 32 pages
World rights available

